19th Annual

2011 West Virginia

Children's

Justice Task Force

Crimes Against Children Conference

November 16-17, 2011 Charleston Civic Center

"Committed to the protection of children from abuse and neglect"

Sponsored by the West Virginia Prosecuting Attorneys Institute, the West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources, and the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of West Virginia.

"The test of the morality of a society is what it does for its children"

About the Children Justice Act

The Children's Justice Act (CJA) provides grants to States to improve the investigation, prosecution and judicial handling of cases of child abuse and neglect, particularly child sexual abuse and exploitation, in a manner that limits additional trauma to the child victim. This also includes the handling of child fatality cases in which child abuse or neglect is suspected and some cases of children with disabilities and serious health problems who also are victims of abuse and neglect.

About the WV Children's Justice Task Force

Membership: The West Virginia Children's Justice Task Force is a multi-disciplinary group, composed of volunteer representatives from law enforcement, the judiciary, prosecuting attorneys, defense attorneys, victim advocates, Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA), health and mental health professionals, child protective services, disability advocates and parent groups. The Task Force meets quarterly to plan and carry out its mission.

Mission: Child abuse and neglect are community problems requiring community solutions. The West Virginia Children's Justice Task Force, a multi-disciplinary body of public and private agencies and individuals, is committed to the protection of children. Our mission is to identify barriers to the successful resolution of child abuse and neglect issues; and to educate and advocate for change.

About the Conference

WV Children's Justice Task Force: Crimes Against Children Conference is a two-day event providing pertinent information and training for professionals in West Virginia on the investigation, treatment and resolution of child maltreatment cases with an emphasis on child sexual abuse. Included in the conference will be updates on new developments in law enforcement, prosecution, child protection, research, and medical treatment.

Who should Attend?

Law Enforcement, Child Protection Workers, Prosecutors, Medical Professionals, Mental Health Professionals, Treatment Providers, Courts, Probation/Parole, Corrections, Victim Advocates, Drug Court Personnel, Day Report, Teachers, CASAs, CACs, Youth Workers, Paramedics, EMT's, Hospital Social Workers, Foster Parents, and the Faith Community.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The goal of the WV Children's Justice Task Force Crimes Against Children conference is to provide practical instruction, using current information, the newest ideas and most successful intervention strategies, to those professionals responsible for combating the many and varied forms of crimes against children.

The conference is conducted for the sole purpose of providing training to people who work in the multidisciplinary field of child maltreatment. This includes governmental or nonprofit agencies in the fields of law enforcement, prosecution, child protective services, social work, children's advocacy, therapy, and medicine who work directly with child victims of crime.

Wednesday and Thursday morning begin with an opening session that includes the conference keynote presentation. Along with a welcome to the conference, you'll be provided with updated conference information and any special instructions that you may need.

After the plenary, there will be 4 (90 minute) workshops operating concurrently throughout the day. There are no repeating workshops. Seating will be on a first come, first serve basis.

OPENING PLENARY 9:00-10:15am

Looking Back: The Jaycee Dugard Case Dr. Rebecca Bailey and Terry Probyn

Jaycee Dugard was kidnapped on June 10, 1991 while waiting at the school bus stop within sight of her home in South Lake Tahoe, California. She was 11 years old. Searches began immediately after the kidnapping, but no reliable leads were generated. In the years that followed, law enforcement missed countless opportunities to find her. Her mother Terri Probyn, living just 140 miles away, never gave up hope and left Jaycee's bedroom untouched.

On August 25, 2009, convicted sex offender Phillip Garrido visited the campus of UC Berkeley accompanied by two young girls. Their unusual behavior sparked an investigation that led to Garrido bringing the two girls to a parole office on August 26, accompanied by a woman who was then identified as Jaycee Dugard.

Phillip Garrido, and his wife Nancy of Antioch, California, were arrested for kidnapping and other charges. They pleaded guilty on April 28, 2011 to Jaycee's kidnapping and sexual assault. Jaycee was kept in a concealed area behind Garrido's house in Antioch for 18 years. During this time Jaycee bore two daughters who were aged 11 and 15 at the time of her reappearance. On June 2, 2011, Phillip Garrido was sentenced to 431 years imprisonment; his wife received 36 years to life.

Terri Probyn, Jaycee's mother and Dr. Rebecca Bailey, Jaycee's therapist, will tell the story of Jaycee's Stolen Life to first responders. Their hope is that should a first responder ever encounter a case such as this, they will know what to do. They will discuss what could have been done differently to secure a more timely and positive outcome to such a horrific case.

Thinking out of the Box Seminar 1:15-4:30pm

Children Exposed to Violence Timothy J. Cruz and Ed Jacoubs

Each year, 10 million children in the US are exposed to violence in the home and on the streets – either witnessing domestic or community violence, or as victims themselves of abuse or neglect. In the past 15 years, researchers and practitioners have come to recognize that such exposure can negatively impact a child's development and functioning. Prolonged exposure to violence and trauma can seriously undermine children's ability to focus, behave appropriately, and learn in school, and often leads to school failure, truancy, suspension or expulsion, dropping out, or involvement in the juvenile justice system. However, teachers and schools cannot address this problem alone.

This workshop will review the Safe Start Initiative launched by the Department of Justice and the Department of Health and Human Services to address the needs of children exposed to violence. The initiative envisions federal, state and local law enforcement and communities working together to prevent and reduce the impact of violence for all children. This workshop will present a case study of the implementation of a trauma sensitive framework by an urban school district. Creating trauma-sensitive schools enables all children, including those traumatized by exposure to violence, to be successful.

OPENING PLENARY 9:00-10:15am

Evaluating Child Abuse: Lessons Learned Dr. Randell Alexander

The Battered Child Syndrome was first described 50 years ago and since then much has been learned about all forms of abuse. This session will explore what we have learned, what we need to unlearn, and where we are going in many areas of investigation and prevention of abuse. These include better investigation techniques and better diagnostic capabilities. However, along with the good are some myths and practices that are outdated.

Thinking out of the Box Seminar 10:30 am- 2:45pm

Working with Parents Who Batter Melissa Scaia

Many men who batter have some level of contact with their children. Many men who batter are concerned about their relationships with their children. Many battered women seek resources for men who batter to help them become safe and more nurturing fathers as well as more supportive parenting partners. For the safety of battered women, for the benefit of children who are having contact, it is critical for interveners in domestic violence to work with abusive men in their role as fathers

Men who batter, whether they are fathers or not, utilize physical, sexual and/or emotional abuse to coerce their family members into complying with their notions of how to think, feel and act. This stems from a variety of beliefs like "I'm always right", "you and the kids are mine", "the man is the decision maker and "the wife and kids do what I say". This kind of privileged thinking is a learned behavior that many men get from the families they grew up in and then is reinforced by the wider culture over time. "Getting my way" is an extremely important expectation of men who batter which often leads him to physically or emotionally abuse a child to get compliance from his partner or his children.

This workshop will explore the research and practice that started as a pilot project with the Family Violence Prevention Fund through the US Department of Justice and the Office on Violence Against Women to address fatherhood with men who batter. The initiative envisions a coordinated community response to battering that will utilize a fatherhood approach to help end men's violence against women and children.

Workshops

A1

Is That Child Abuse?

Dr. Katherine Snyder

In this session, cases of suspected child abuse and neglect will be presented, analyzed, and evaluated to determine whether it is an actual case of child abuse or neglect. An anonymous entry, audience response system will be utilized throughout the course of the session as the session participants help to make the diagnosis.

A2

A Case Study: Pete Bowen

Christopher Chiles

In April 2011, a Cabell County jury found Pete Bowen guilty on 34 counts of sexual abuse and sexual assault. He was sentenced to a minimum of 302 years in prison. Pete Bowen is a former Huntington Police Captain. He assaulted many young male victims in the 80's and 90's and was finally brought to justice when one of his victims, Shane Wilburn, came forward in 2010. Chris Chiles, Cabell County Prosecutor, and Shane Wilburn will present this case study.

A3

ImageScan

Melinda Cash

This software tool was created by members of the FBI's Computer Analysis Response Team specifically for "knock & talk" situations relating to child exploitation investigations. Once deployed, the software quickly identifies and isolates images on a suspect's computer. It stores them on a USB device without altering any files on the computer. ImageScan consists of a CD and a USB device.

A4

Fatherhood Today: A Whole New MANual

Jim Harris

Being a father today proposes a host of challenges unlike any previous generation has faced. In this presentation Jim uses his experiences as a father and vast understanding of the parent child relationship to explore the developmental importance of a nurturing relationship between a father and his child. Specific attention will be paid to the history of fathering, gender roles, the bonding process, and family dynamics.

B1

Medical Evaluation of the Abused and Neglected Child - "What Can Really Be Said"

Dr. Katherine Snyder

In this session, the medical evaluation of a child who is suspected of being maltreated will be reviewed. What a child abuse pediatrician can and cannot diagnose based on the child's history, physical presentation, laboratory tests, radiologic images, etc. will be evaluated. A review of the pertinent medical literature will be presented as a part of this session.

B2

Updates on the Law

Catherine Munster

This seminar will address legal matters of particular significance occurring in the last year, including new state and federal statutes, rule changes and decisions by the state supreme court in cases involving child abuse and neglect.

B3

Bath Salts

Dr. Michael Ang-Rabanes'

This presentation will review the recent and popular usage of the synthetic drugs labeled "Bath Salts". It will explain how the drug is administered in the population and the demographics of those who are using. Participants will be informed of the current legal status of these drugs, side-effects/consequences from use, treatment, and user experiences. A brief history of compounds similar in structure and properties to these "bath salts" chemicals will also be discussed in order to have a better conceptualization of how these compounds fit into modern society and their potential impact on the future of drug use.

B4

Substance Exposed Infants

Jim Harris

The issue of substance abuse continues to have a growing negative impact on our area. In this session Jim explores some of the physical and psychological issues that manifest in children as a result of substance exposure both directly and indirectly. Jim will pay specific attention to how substance abuse exposure changes a child's physiological and psychological interpretation of the world. After attending this session you will be more informed on how to better understand and work with children who have been exposed to substance abuse directly and indirectly.

Workshops

C1

Jaycee Dugard: The Rest of the Story

Dr. Rebecca Bailey and Terry Probyn

This session will address the rest of the story of Jaycee's stolen life. There are many victims with hidden scars when a child is maltreated. Siblings, extended family, and the community at large all suffer. There are huge issues from juggling and maneuvering through the competing interests of individual agencies. And last but not least, there are the challenges of confronting privacy issues and media control.

C2

Co-Petitioning

Catherine Munster

This training is designed to address practice issues arising out of Rule 17(a) of the West Virginia Rules of Procedure for Child Abuse and Neglect: the Co-Petitioning rule. Among other things, this seminar will cover the rationale for why co-petitioning is to be used, how to identify appropriate cases for co-petitioning, the procedural mechanism for how to implement Rule 17(a), some common obstacles to implementation with recommendations for overcoming these obstacles, and common traps for the unwary when using co-petitioning.

Don't Get Famous Like This

Cpl. Adam Scott

In light of the recent media attention to the Casey Anthony trial and the Jaycee Dugard investigation, we will discuss and learn about the mistakes made during these investigations and others. You will become aware of investigation pitfalls, mistakes and lack of attention to details that will make you famous during your investigation for all the wrong reasons. Learn how not to become "that" officer/investigator.

C4

The Adolescent Brain: Understanding the "What" & "Why"

Jim Harris

In this session Jim will take you on a journey into the adolescent brain. I know, it sounds pretty scary! However with this improved understanding you will learn how to take into consideration the developmental status of the adolescent brain in developing programming and interventions. Jim will pay specific attention to developmental progression and how it relates to different behavioral manifestations. He will use case examples and common issues in adolescent interventions to bring "real world" relevance to the information.

D1

Abusive Head Trauma

Dr. Randell Alexander

Abusive head trauma (AHT) is an uncommon form of physical abuse, but one of the most serious. It is usually easy to diagnose, but can be a point of contention in the courtroom. The epidemiology, definitions, diagnostic features, and out comes of AHT will be examined. Ten arguments for shaken baby syndrome will be discussed, and arguments and their rebuttals examined.

D2

Obtaining Records

Cpl. Adam Scott, Melia Atkins, Chris Bell, and Joyce Yedlosky

It can be difficult to obtain records when working/building a case, however; such records are vitally important to case assessment, preparation and any subsequent litigation. There are privacy and safety concerns when acquiring and using records. Often it takes either a subpoena or a court order. This panel discussion will benefit law enforcement, child protective services, prosecutors and domestic violence advocates. The panel is expected to share successful practices in obtaining records in a timely fashion to build child maltreatment cases.

D3

The West Virginia State Police Response to Crimes Against Children

1/Sgt. Chris Casto

This session will provide a complete overview of the Crimes Against Children Unit. This unit is comprised of the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC), Child Protection, Digital Forensics, Missing Children Clearinghouse, and West Virginia Cyber Crime Cooperative (WV3C). Each unit has a focus on keeping children across West Virginia safe, and every attendee will learn how these sections operate, impact and benefit citizens of West Virginia.

D4

Social Workers - "Making a Case for Safety" Jim Holler

Social workers are at risk for hostile behavior from the public when conducting home visits with clients. This workshop will address safety concerns from the law enforcement perspective by providing social workers with important safety related information that they can utilize each time they make a home visit on their own. This workshop will provide social workers with ways they can identify potentially harmful conditions and defuse volatile situations when encountered.

Workshops

\mathbf{E}^{2}

Failure to Thrive: Medical vs. Environmental

Dr. Randell Alexander

Failure to thrive (FTT) is a relatively common pediatric observation, but by itself is not a diagnosis. Some FTT is the result of medical conditions which are not easily remedied, some a lack of parental knowledge, but some is the result of neglect. Moving past the outdated notions of "organic" and "non organic" FTT, the modern approach to diagnosis will be examined. Special attention will be given to the concepts of "protein-calorie malnutrition" and "micronutrient malnutrition." Differences between the legal and medical sense of urgency of such cases will be discussed.

E2

Childhood Fall Injuries - "Accidental vs. Inflicted" Jim Holler

Falls are the leading cause of unintentional injury for children. The severity of a fall-related injury is determined by the distance of the fall and the landing surface. Because falls are associated with a child's curiosity and development of motor skills, children ages 10 and under are at the greatest risk of fall-related death and injury. This workshop will focus on identifying non-accidental fall injuries on children and will emphasize the specific techniques that can be used by the investigator in the assessment, investigation, and reconstruction of injuries sustained from a fall.

E3

Combating Child Sexual Exploitation

Sgt. David Eldridge

First responders often find themselves in homes where they suspect child pornography and other internet crimes against children. What are the proper procedures to get the ball rolling on the investigation? This session will examine the scope of technology facilitated crimes against children and law enforcement's response to these crimes. There will be discussion regarding the unique resources and capabilities of the Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force regarding the investigation of on-line child pornography trafficking and other on-line child sexual exploitation offenses.

E4

Disability and Child Maltreatment

Fran Allen

Maltreatment is maltreatment whether or not a child has a disability. You know that. But what constitutes a disability, and can it make a difference in how you approach or handle a case? Does it matter if the accused has a disability? How about a non-offending parent? If the presence of disability makes this "foreign territory" for you, this session will give you the basic orientation you need to keep children safe and in families when disability is involved.

F1

The Impact of Drugs on Prenatal Exposure

Dr. Byron Calhoun

Prenatal exposure the methamphetamine and prescription drugs is a huge problem in WV and around the country. This presentation will cover the scope of the issue, recent data, WV's latest data, CAMC's latest data, treatment and challenges in the field.

F2

Preparing a Witness To Testify

Philip Morrison

This session will assist attendees in preparing witnesses for the Courthouse and the Courtroom. Techniques will be discussed for overcoming obstacles to communication with the fact finder as well as best practices to present effective testimony. Topics include types of witnesses, credibility issues, overcoming anxiety, behavior to avoid while testifying, opposing lawyer tactics and strategies for success.

F3

Drug Identification and Drug Endangered Children

Chad Napier and Sara Whitney
What prescription drug is abused the most? What color is heroin? How do people use meth? How much does is heroin? How do people use meth? How much does Cocaine cost? This presentation will give you an overview of the drugs that are affecting WV children and families and the detrimental effects of these drugs on children and families. Through handouts, video and power points you will gain knowledge to recognize and respond to situations involving child abuse and neglect as it relates to caregivers use, manufacturing and trafficking of illicit drugs.

Bridging the Gap "Protecting Our Kids"

Jim Holler

This highly emotional training is designed to touch the heart of each person within the MDT team, challenging them to do better child abuse and sexual assault investigations. This workshop will educate the law enforcement officer on the duties of the CPS worker, what standards they are required to prove by law, and what happens when these standards are not met. CPS workers will learn the role of law enforcement and what officers face in dealing with these types of cases. This workshop is designed to show the benefits of joint investigation, such as improved protection and services for children, better understanding of roles and responsibilities, enhanced information sharing, more effective use of limited resources, enhanced training, and reduced burnout.

Fran Allen

Fran has advocated for disability rights for more than 28 years, and directed the advocacy project for members of the Medley v. Ginsberg class for 10 years. She is currently a mediator in Parkersburg, where she resolves conflicts for families, Family and Magistrate Courts and workplaces, as well as mediating disputes in Special Education and Behavioral Health. Fuller Award for outstanding resident voted on by staff physicians at WVU Department of Behavioral Medicine and Psychiatry in 2011.

Rebecca Bailey, PhD

Transitioning Families encompasses the family and individual counseling practice of Rebecca Bailey, Ph.D. as well as her reunification programs, parenting classes and supervised visitation services. Dr. Bailey incorporated her clinical experience with her long-standing interest in animal therapy and the equine-assisted growth and learning programs. Dr. Bailey received her doctoral degree from The Wright Institute in Berkeley, CA. Since 1995 she has focused on high conflict familial situations and parent coordination from a developmental perspective. She is former director of the Sonoma Police Departments Youth and Family services program and was a therapist educator for programs such as Marin County's DUI Program. She continues to work with a variety of state and national organizations such as The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. She has served as a Special master and expert witness in cases were parental alienation or estrangement is an issue. Research interests include the development and implementation of Reunification programs for families recovering from abduction, exploitation, and High conflict Divorces and other life transitions such as Military deployment.

Chris Bell

Chris Bell is a Child Protective Services Supervisor with the West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources based in the Mercer District Office. He has been employed with the DHHR for 13 years. The first 8 years he was a CPS intake worker primarily responsible for investigating allegations of abuse and neglect. The past 5 years he has supervised a combination of CPS Intake and Ongoing Case Managers. In addition to his employment, Chris is a member of the Children's Justice Task Force as well as the Survivor's With Children Workgroup affiliated with the WV Coalition Against Domestic Violence.
